

Bachelor work entitled: theological and ethical aspects shaping the lives of people with Alzheimer's disease focuses on people with Alzheimer's disease, handling, processing, and attitudes towards this disease in society and access it. Aim of this work is the general view on this disease and the aforementioned focus in terms of adequate theological and ethical aspects, which include aspects of individual, inter-personal and social theological ethics. Bachelor work observe, that every person with Alzheimer's disease through the consequences for him and his surroundings does not lose its dignity, and therefore has the right to humane treatment. Theological and ethical reflection contains three steps: see – evaluate - act.